

Study Abroad Health Assessment Form, Part A: Self-Assessment

REQUIRED FOR ALL STUDENTS

SELF-ASSESSMENT CONSIDERATIONS. Before completing the Self-Assessment Checklist on page 2, please consider the following aspects of well-being abroad. Reflect on your current needs, treatment regimens, and how to meet your needs abroad using various resources.

- Consult with your Current Provider: If you have not disclosed your travel plans to your current physician or mental health provider, schedule a consult as soon as possible. Complete this assessment and bring a copy to the appointment. Discuss any special program requirements or unique environmental factors; review these considerations together and discuss actions that you can take to manage your health abroad.
- Vaccinations & Disease Prevention: Before completing this form, review travel considerations, prevention strategies, and recommended vaccinations for your destination(s) at CDC Travelers' Health. Visit McKinley Health Center Travel Consults and Service for information on scheduling travel consults.
- Routine Care: Well before travel, consider routine care that you receive or may need while abroad. The University-approved insurance will not pay for routine physical, eye, dental, or similar exams; those should be completed prior to travel. However, the insurance can often arrange and pay for ongoing medical care for pre-existing conditions while abroad, such as lab work, counseling, and therapy. Reimbursement for such care is limited to $10,000. Visit International Safety and Security for more information.
- Medications (Prescription or Over-the-Counter): Do not assume your medications will be available or allowed in your country of travel; U.S. medications may be unlicensed or controlled at the destination. Plan early if you require routine or prescription medications. Countries also have different rules for carrying medications across borders. Review "Traveling with Medication" and "Your Health Abroad" for more information. For questions regarding specific medications at your destination, International Insurance can verify the legality of medications in your destination country and recommend alternatives that you and your treating physician can consider. Visit International Safety and Security for more information.
- Reasonable Accommodations. Students are responsible for requesting any reasonable accommodations required for any disability in an appropriate time frame prior to departure. In order to obtain accommodations support for any disability diagnosis while studying abroad, you must provide the University's Disability Resources & Education Services ("DRES") with appropriate documentation of disability. Requested accommodations may not be available at the overseas location but the University will attempt to provide alternative accommodations when possible. If you do not make disability diagnosis(es) known in a timely manner, the University may delay your participation in the program until reasonable accommodations can be determined. For more information, visit the DRES-Study Abroad page.
- Dietary Restrictions / Allergies: If you have dietary restrictions, and/or food allergies, discuss them with your physician and your study abroad advisor as soon as possible. While accommodation cannot be guaranteed, efforts will be made to support requests received in a timely manner. The international insurance can provide allergy notification cards in local languages for use while abroad and can arrange for replacement of epi-pens if used or lost.
- Health Insurance Abroad: You are required to purchase the University-approved International Travel and Health Insurance. Typically, students are enrolled through program registration; students can also enroll on the International Safety and Security website. Beyond emergent health needs, this insurance can assist with routine care and medications as noted above. You are encouraged to purchase additional coverage for travel before or after your program dates. Visit International Safety and Security for more information.
